Steel Freight Cars
The steel revolution in the use of steel will be the building of a steel car freight car. The cost of a steel car freight car, says the Railroad Gazette, would have been several times that of a wooden car, rendering its use impracticable. It is possible to build a complete steel car for about the same cost per ton carrying capacity as a wooden car, and the advantages from the transportation point of view are very great. The saving in dead weight is a large factor in this direction, as it is the saving in weight, and incidentally the absence of risk from fire, while the life of the car would be, say, three times as great.

For example, take a saving of 5,000 pounds per car in dead weight as compared with the wooden car of equal capacity in an equipment of 1,000 cars; that means the saving in haulage of 5,000,000 pounds, or 5,000 net tons. It has been computed that it costs to transport one ton of freight on the haul of the average main line of rail, while the life of the car would be, say, three times as great.

Through Georgia
Lewis Baldwin's friends in Atlanta are rejoicing over the fact that the attorney general of the state has given orders for the reopening of his case. The reopening of the case was made at the request of Colonel Buck.

Governor Nathan and Judge Turner left Atlanta a day or two ago for Mississippi, where they go to inspect the convict system. The trip will occupy about one week, and on the return trip they will inspect the convict camp in and around Birmingham, Ala.

Captain C. Brown has been given two officers to state troops at the instruction of the state troops at the annual encampment. The four officers will be given the instruction of the state troops at the annual encampment. The four officers will be given the instruction of the state troops at the annual encampment.

Wasting Time
They were dining off in a restaurant. "You see," he explained, as he showed her the whiskey, "you take hold here and I'll tell you how to drink it. We must both make a wish and pull when it breaks the one who is the bigger hauler. I will have his or her wish granted."

"But I don't know what to wish for," she replied.

"Oh, you can't think of anything," he said.

"You can," she replied. "I can't think of anything I want very much."

"Well, I'll wish for you," he exclaimed.

"What do you wish?" she asked.

"You," he replied.

"What, then, there's no use fooling with the old whiskey," he interrupted with a gasp.

"You can't have me," she said.
